To our Friday Fling vendors:

In these unprecedented times, we understand that adapting to ever-changing scenarios and working together is more important than ever to create a successful and safe environment for customers and vendors alike. The Greater Palmer Chamber of Commerce is committed to providing a platform for vendors to conduct business while maintaining public safety standards that ensure customers feel at ease patronizing such businesses.

With this in mind, we are making policy changes to ensure that all are informed of what to do in the event that a vendor or someone within a vendor's social circle contracts the novel coronavirus, COVID-19. With an increase in awareness and communication, we can continue the rest of the season in a safe and informed manner. With that said, here is a list of policy changes effective immediately:

- If a vendor is experiencing any signs of illness, the GPCC asks that you do not participate in that week's Friday Fling. If experiencing symptoms of COVID-19, we encourage you to procure a test, and we ask that you do not participate in the following two Friday Fling dates.
- Every effort must be made to notify the GPCC of your absence prior to the event. Please be aware that in the 2021 Friday Fling season, failure to notify GPCC staff of absence will incur additional fines.
- We will never disclose any personal information to other vendors, the public, media outlets, or anyone outside of GPCC Staff [Ailis Vann, Kalea Hogate, and Randi Bernier]. Vendors are not required to disclose the reason behind their 1-2 week absence. This is not meant as an intrusion in your private affairs, we make this request for the public's health and for Friday Fling to remain open.
- If a vendor discovers they or someone in their social circle is COVID-19 positive, and no effort has been made to remove themselves from the Friday Fling environment, the vendor will be immediately removed from the 2020 Friday Fling season without refund, and will receive a 1 year ban from participating in Friday Fling seasons.

We thank you for your cooperation and perspective. If we all work together, we can continue to host this platform for small businesses to operate. We wish you wellness, and will continue our commitment to mitigating a successful and safe 2020 Friday Fling Season.
